QUARLES IS NAMED AS THE SENATOR

The Formal Action Was Taken This Noon.

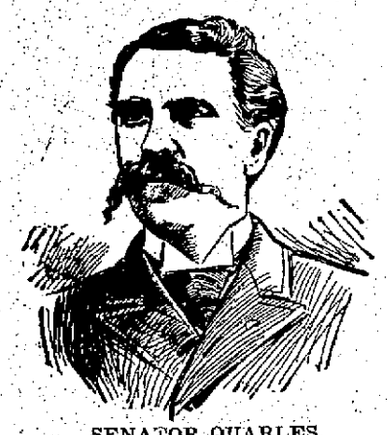

CAUCUS NOMINEE IS DECLARED THE CHOICE.

Accepts the Office With a Neat Speech Promising to Serve the People Without Regard to Locality or Political Preferances—The Legislative Doings of the Day.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31—[Special]—J. V. Quarles, of Milwaukee, is United States senator elect to succeed John L. Mitchell, March 4, next. The ballot which elected him was cast at the joint legislative convention at noon today. He received all the 110 republican votes cast; T. E. Ryan getting 18 democratic votes.

Mr. Quarles was brought before the convention and made a brief speech in which he said:

"To serve this state will be a labor of love. It remains for me to say that your commission is thus interpreted and understood. Your servant now commissioned is not to represent any particular district or section, but the whole of Wisconsin; no party but the whole people. My hope and prayer is that you will never have occasion to regret the action of this day."

Several bills were introduced in the assembly this morning, among the important ones being:

By Mr. More amending the arson law so as to include farm machinery or other personal property.

By Mr. Grootemaat restricting the powers of railroad companies and prohibiting them from delegating power to companies not governed by the same laws as themselves.

By Mr. Ela, reducing the pay of jury commissioners from $5 a day and ten cents mileage to $3 a day and six cents mileage.

In the senate Mr. McGillivray introduced a memorial to congress for a constitutional amendment giving congress concurrent powers with states for restrictions of trusts. One bill passed increasing the jurisdiction of the Waukesha county court.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—Joseph V. Quarles was unanimously selected by the republican caucus for the United States senatorship Monday night, the names of Babcock, Stephenson, Cook and Webb being withdrawn at the opening of the caucus.

No sooner had the roll been called and the evening session of the caucus convened than Assemblyman Zinn of Milwaukee, one of the delegates from that city who left Quarles early in the contest and went to Stephenson, asked for recognition by the chairman and withdrew Stephenson's name, stating that the members who had supported the Marinette man were free to vote for whom they pleased, and that he was going to vote for Quarles. Senator McGillivray then withdrew the name of Babcock and informed the members who had stood by him that they were free to vote for any other candidate. Assemblyman Williams withdrew the name of Cook, and Senator Holton announced that the name of Webb would be withdrawn and moved that the nomination of Quarles be made unanimous.

Senator Green of Milwaukee insisted that as the roll call had been started it be proceeded with. When the roll call was finished Quarles had every one of the 108 votes cast. When the vote was announced the assembly chamber resounded with cheers and while a committee went to bring in Quarles for a speech patriotic songs were sung. While waiting for the nominee the several managers and active workers shook hands with "Long" Jones of Waukesha, manager for Quarles, and with the best of feeling one of the hardest-fought senatorial contests in the annals of Wisconsin came to a happy termination.

Joseph Very Quarles, who received the republican nomination for United States senator, to succeed John L. Mitchell, is one of the foremost lawyers and orators of Wisconsin. He is a native of Wisconsin, having been born in Kenosha fifty-five years ago. He was graduated from the high school of Kenosha at the age of 17. In 1862 he entered the University of Michigan as a freshman, but left his studies during the rebellion and enlisted in the Thirty-ninth Wisconsin infantry, being made first lieutenant of company C. At the expiration of his service he returned to the university and was graduated with the class of 1866, with the degree of A. B. Later he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1868. Mr. Quarles was elected district attorney of Kenosha county and mayor of Kenosha, and also represented his district in the legislature as assemblyman and senator. He practiced law in Racine a number of years, and removed to Milwaukee in 1888, since which time he has carried on a successful law practice at the head of the firm of Quarles, Spence & Quarles. Mr. Quarles was married in 1868 to Miss Carrie A. Saunders of Chicago, and they have three sons.

HEALTH OF THE CITY REPORTED GOOD

SUBSIDENCE OF THE GRIP ENCOURAGES PHYSICIANS.

Cold Weather Has Rendered the Germs of the Malady Inert, and Few New Cases Are Developing—No Other Contagious or Infectious Diseases Here.

Local physicians are hopeful that the existing cold weather will put an end to the epidemic of grip here. Already there is a decrease in the number of new cases, but few have reported since last Saturday. "The cold does not destroy the germs of the disease," said a prominent physician today, "but it renders them inert. I look for little of the epidemic later in the season, for in all probability the next spell of mild weather will be a final breaking up of winter, and the malady will not survive it."

The deaths from grip and its complications have been comparatively few in Janesville. It is possible that the complaint has weakened some constitutions rendering them more susceptible to disease, but in a majority of cases the cures have been complete and satisfactory, and no evil effects need be apprehended.

Aside from the few remaining and convalescent victims of the grip, and a number of ordinary colds due to the sudden changes of the weather, the health of Janesville is very good. There are fewer cases of pulmonary disease than for several years past, no zynotic disease of any sort, and neither contagious nor infectious maladies.

MADE A ROMANTIC RUNAWAY MATCH

CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER'S SCRAPEGRACE SON-IN-LAW.

Eloped to Milwaukee and Was Married Against Parents' Wishes—Got Money the Other Day on a Worthless Check and is Now in the Law's Clutches.

The arrest of J. Matt Aubrey, son-in-law of Chief Justice Fuller, of the United States supreme court, for procuring money from a citizen of Milwaukee on a forged check, was mentioned in The Gazette dispatches yesterday. The Chicago Inter Ocean's Milwaukee dispatch gives further details of the transaction as follows:

J. Matt Aubrey, Jr., who was once given great prominence owing to his elopement and marriage with a daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, was arrested in Chicago and brought to Milwaukee on a charge of obtaining $100 from ex-Sheriff Fred Isenring by means of a forged check. C. B. Aubrey, of this city, is J. Matt Aubrey's uncle. About two weeks ago the uncle and nephew met Mr. Isenring near the Hotel Pfister. The young man remarked that this was a queer town where a man couldn't raise $100 on a draft after the banks had closed. Mr. Isenring did not know Aubrey, but was well acquainted with the uncle, and ever ready to accommodate a friend, he said he thought he could let him have the money, and forthwith cashed the draft, which was on a Chicago bank, and which appeared to be all right.

A few days later Mr. Isenring learned that the draft was worthless, and at once complained to the police, and the Chicago police were notified that Aubrey was wanted in Milwaukee. This morning the arrest was made.

Aubrey and Miss Fuller came to Milwaukee one evening nine years ago and were married by Justice Gregory, who was greatly astonished when he heard that he had officiated at the marriage of a daughter of the chief justice of the supreme court. The young couple remained at the Kirby house for some time, awaiting the forgiveness of the girl's parents.

The latter finally became reconciled to the match, and the young people went back to Chicago. Aubrey and his wife afterward had trouble, and a separation followed. Divorce proceedings, which were the subject of great public interest at the time, were begun by the wife who has since married again

As related in a measure to the story of Aubrey it may be added to the Inter Ocean's story that the Fullers are a family with a reputation for elopements. The chief justice, when a young man, fell in love with a Miss Coolbaugh, a daughter of the leading banker of that city, and they eloped and were married. The couple have had a number of daughters, three of whom have been married clandestinely. None of these were driven to elopement by parental opposition, but seemed to prefer it to marriage in the conventional form.

GALENA CLAIMS THE FACTORY

Janesville Was Too Slow In Dealing With Fitzgibbons Bros.

Janesville will not have the pleasure of laying claim to Fitzgibbons Bros. carriage factory at Monroe. Galena, Ill., claims to have landed the prize, having offered the concern a $30,000 plant and the proposition has been accepted. A mortgage of $30,000 on the plant which has been reduced to $20,000, will have to be paid first, and the citizens of the Illinois town claim they will have no difficulty in doing so.

Sexton's Friends Are Hopeful.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Dr. Graham said last evening that Col. James E. Sexton was restly quietly and doing as well as could be expected. The worst feature of his case at present is his extreme weakness, which would make it impossible to resist another attack of the disease. However, there are no indications of a relapse and his friends are very hopeful of his recovery.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The senate committee on judiciary today made an adverse report on the nomination of Hamilton G. Brooke Will Remain in Cuba.

A SPANISH VIEW.

It Sees Many Difficulties For Americans In the Philippines.

Barcelona, Jan. 31—[Special]—Local newspapers publish advices from Manila to the effect that the Spaniards there prefer the independence of the Philippines to annexation by the United States. The elopement was a nine-day wonder and just as the public had ceased to talk about it, an application for divorce was announced. A decree of divorce was granted and then the divorced wife, who at that time was a very handsome woman, has been on the stage.

NEWS FROM OUR NEIGHBORS

Gathered By The Gazette's Correspondents.

County Line, Jan. 31—All quiet along the line this week. The Herrick sisters, Nannie and Daisy, are working in Edgerton, sizing tobacco. Joseph Loughran sold about one hundred cases of old tobacco last week, and delivered it Wednesday. We hear it netted him about $3,000. E. Shaw delivered sixteen hogs, Monday, which brought over $200. Hans Iverson delivered his new crop of tobacco, Saturday. It was a stormy day, but nothing stops a farmer when he has a chance to deliver his tobacco. Chas. Learn's little boy has been quite sick for a few days. Dr. McChesney attends him nearly every day. We are glad to learn that he is improving. We have a new calf buyer in the field. Ben Perrigo is looking for them, and buying all he can get, at a fair price. William Watson, who has been very sick, is slowly improving. He is able to sit up part of the time, but is still very weak. George Haylock, Jr., has just completed a new hog house. That is something every farmer needs and they will find it out some day. Wm. Wright has put in a set of Fairbank's standard wagon and stock scales. He can now tell the weight of every horse, cow and pig on the farm, and will know when he delivers stock that he will get honest weight. Saturday was tobacco day in this neighborhood. A person could hardly look out without seeing one or more loads on the road to Edgerton. Frank Herrick is on the road nearly every day with one of the Shaw pump wagons. Frank is a good workman and gives good satisfaction. Charles Adolphson delivered his tobacco Saturday. He had an extra fine crop, and is noted for raising as good tobacco as can be raised in Rock county. George Cushman, who went to Texas to see if a change of climate would help him, died last week of consumption at the home of Mrs. Webb in Springs, Texas. George was well known and much esteemed in this neighborhood, having made his home here more or less all of his life. He was a son of Mrs. Robert Cook, of Porter, and was about twenty-three years of age. He has been failing in health for the past three years and leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss. Several of our young people will attend the annual Fireman's ball to be held in Royal hall at Edgerton on Thursday evening, February 2. The people along the line who take their milk to the Albion creamery are well pleased with the results. The fact of their receiving 15,400 pounds of milk per day will convince people that they have a successful creamery. A large party of young people met at the residence of Charles Nelson on Tuesday evening, of last week, and had a social time. Playing games and whistling and singing was the order of the evening. All went home well pleased with the evening's entertainment. We are pleased to learn that W. C. Bragg has lease the Emerald creamery for a term of five years. He has always done his best to please his patrons and friends and we would not like to see the creamery in charge of any other man as long as he does as he has in the past. Your correspondent sends the milk of seven cows and they net him on an average of seven dollars per month. That is better than raising six-cent tobacco. Among the people intending to start at warehouse work this week are Herbert, Emil and Alma Hereoid, of Porter. While delivering tobacco in Edgerton on Saturday of last week one of Alex. White's men while driving across the railroad tracks had his wagon smashed and his team and himself badly shaken up by a freight car which was running quite fast, having been sent down the track and not attached to the engine. Everyone agrees that that the crossing on Main street in Edgerton is the most dangerous crossing in the county, there being about ten tracks, with warehouses built built between, so it is almost impossible to see a train or a car until it is right on the crossing, and a person can hardly tell which track a train is switching on. If ever a town needed a flagman or gates by the crossing, Edgerton does, as driving across there is like buying a lottery ticket inasmuch as a person is running a good many chances. The mercury registered 23 degrees below zero on Sunday morning. Charley Sweeney, the hustling tobacco buyer, was picking up a few choice crops out here last week. Frank Herrick, agent for the American sickle grinder and pulverizer sharpener, was through this section Monday. He has the finest machine that we ever saw and can sharpen a binder or mower sickle in fifteen minutes no matter how dull it is, and it grinds them so true and even that it seems almost impossible until a person sees it done. The boys are to have a rabbit hunt on the big marsh today, (Tuesday.) We did not hear how they came out. There were six on a side and the side getting the least number of rabbits will have to furnish an oyster supper for the twelve and each one has the privilege of bringing a friend. The Stebbinsville mill under the management of Wm. Gilley is a decided success with regard to grinding feed. Some days he has more than he can do and all his patrons are well pleased with his work. Our prayer meeting on Friday evening was almost a failure, there being but three persons present. The weather was too cold and the wind blew so hard it was disagreeable to be out. Next week on Friday evening we expect to have some outsiders with us and want all the regular members to be present if possible and come prepared to do their part. M. M. Reals, of Madison, has been canvassing the neighborhood to ascertain what the prospects are to organize a singing school to be held in the school house one evening of each week. We hope to see a large attendance and can assure the people that Mr. Reals is a good teacher. William Tyler, the popular milkman does his own feed grinding and corn shredding. He has a medium sized shredder and says it will pay for itself in one season. It is strange that there is not more of them among the farmers who feed any amount of stock. As I am obliged to be away from home for some time will some other county liner write a little nonsense for The Gazette for one or two weeks at least?

The funeral of Mrs. Hiram Foltz, who died Thursday night, was held at the house at 2 p. m. Sunday. Rev. W. P. Leek preached the funeral sermon. Her death is particularly sad, because of the four small children left motherless. Deceased was a native of Pennsylvania and was born in 1856. Her husband had charge of the electric lights here until the plant shut down a week ago. The interment was made in the cemetery here. The pall bearers were Otis Noble, L. J. Merrill, Willard Elithorp, Leoh Pye, Louis Larson and H. Kath. The families of J. S. Fenton and son have moved to Genoa, Wis. Mrs. Alex. Thom is the guest of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Cash Thom, in Madison. Operator H. O. Churchill and Miss Lizzie Griffith were married, Thursday evening, by Rev. T. J Parsons, of the Baptist church. They left the same evening for a short wedding trip. Both are well known here, and have many friends. The moving picture entertainment will be held in the Congregational church Thursday evening of this week. It will be free, it is said. Ed. Gardner, who has lived on the Winchester farm the past year, will soon occupy the farm he recently purchased in Bradford. T. J. Maguire, a recent Clinton compositor, is now in Oak Park, Ill., working at his trade, and doing well. Ed. Rader has had patented an invention of his own for use in blacksmith shops, which he hopes will prove useful and remunerative.

North Johnstown

North Johnstown, Jan. 31—Funeral services for Mrs. Ann Hulse Johnson, for many years a resident of this place, who died at her home in Whitewater, Thursday morning, were held at the church here Saturday afternoon, Rev. J. C. Steele officiating. Mrs. Johnson was a woman universally beloved and esteemed by all who knew her. She united with the church in this place in the year 1857 and had ever since lived a consistent christian life. She had been in feeble health for many years, but she bore her sufferings patiently, and with a heroic fortitude seldom witnessed in those much stronger than herself. She leaves one son, George Johnson, of Beloit, three brothers and four sisters, besides a large circle of relatives and friends, by whom she will be greatly missed. A husband, one son, Merle, and one daughter, Mrs. Kate Rice, have preceeded her to the better world. The interment was in the cemetery in this place, beside her loved ones. Mrs. Gennet, who has been sick for a week, is better. Mrs. Miles Malone, who has been dangerously sick with pneumonia, is improving. Among those sick with the grip the past week were: Mrs. Frank Rice, G. L. Shumway, Miss Minnie Hanna and James Bennett. We are glad to note that all are about again. For several days the thermometer has been below the zero mark and Sunday morning it reached twenty degrees below. The W. C. T. U. meeting was omitted on account of the severe weather and will be held this week, if possible, Thursday afternoon.

Footville.

Footville, Wis., Jan. 31—It seems that cold weather and sickness are the prevailing features of the vicinity, there not being well persons enough to take care of the sick. Mrs. Ernest Barmley is very low, and it is feared that he will have to leave the creamery. C. A. Bates who purchased the David Hasting's farm near Spring Valley Corners two years ago has sold out and started from here Friday to Tennessee. He took considerable hay and grain, also numerous farming tools. The tobacco business is booming here now as the warehouses are running large forces and report that help is scarce. There is only a few crops of tobacco left in this vicinity now but what is sold. Elder Mutchler and James Maybe, who have been conducting meetings at Pardeeville, are expected home soon. Master Harry Silverthorn is home from Janesville High School, he being called here to conduct his father's warehouse. Mr. Everett Osmond met with the sad accident of getting his foot badly jammed by the cars, Sunday evening, while riding home from Evansville. Miss Pearl Philips has so far recovered from her recent illness that she may be able to leave here Saturday. She goes to Montana, where she will join her sister, Alice. A large number from here are attending the Farmers' Institute at Brodhead this week. Miss Smiley went home Friday to spend Sunday with friends and relatives. Messrs. Howe & Sons state they will have their mill in operation after Feb. 1 and will be prepared to do custom work. There is another wedding rumor going now. Who is next?

Shopiere.

Shopiere, Jan. 31—The masquerade on Friday evening was very much enjoyed by all that were present. Tuckwood, of Janesville, furnished the music and of course it was of the best. Many were doubtless unable to attend because of the prevailing epidemic. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steadwell, of Janesville, came out to attend the party. Miss Lettie Swingle came home to spend Sunday with her family. Mrs. Swingle has been quite ill lately. Rev. Frank Richardson was unable to preach on Sabbath morning. A sermon was read by E. D. Billing, which was very interesting. Ed can read sermons or cook oysters, and do them both very well. There was no service in the evening. We hear rumors of a valentine social to be held at the Congregational church. No doubt the ladies will give us due notice. The people who have been eating onions to keep off the grip, do not seem to escape the disease any better than others. Every person in the town that has a thermometer is trying to make out that theirs reached the lowest point on Sunday morning.

Emerald Grove.

Emerald Grove, Jan. 31—The birthday social is this week, Friday evening, at the church parlors. Everybody is invited. There will be an oyster supper, and the ladies are requested to furnish cake. We were sorry to hear of Orville Knilan's accident, for we all know a broken leg is no desirable thing, and hope he will get along all right. Miss Blanche Morrissy, of Janesville, was the guest of Misses Ella and Lily Davis, over Sunday. Miss Nettie Boynton was obliged to give up her school this week on account of sickness. Flora Boynton wielded the rod in her absence. The ladies of the missionary society will be entertained by Mrs. Dennis, on Wednesday afternoon. If you want the best flour at the lowest price, go to Gillies & Jones'.

Otter Creek.

Otter Creek, Jan. 31—The thermometer registered 19 degrees below zero at the Creek Sunday morning. None of us are looking for trouble, but most of us are watching the wood disappear, and hope for a change in the weather. There has been no school the past week, owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Mary Livingstone. Frank Green and Roy Williams, two of our local "sports," passed through here Saturday, looking for rabbits, chipmunks, &c. George Bassett is drawing stone to Milton Junction thir winter. Mrs. William Lyon is recovering from her illness. Lynn Smith is home. William Bryant called on friends at Ft. Atkinson, Sunday.

Stebbinsville.

Stebbinsville, Jan. 31—Wm. Wright and Frank Farmin have bought a new corn shredder. The Murray girls are attending school in Edgerton. Miss Alice Wright is sick. Charley Learn's little baby is sick with lung fever. William Gifford is thinking of renting his farm the coming year. Nannie and Daisy Herrick are working in tobacco in Edgerton. Frank Walker is selling a carload of wood a week in Edgerton. A number of farmers delivered their tobacco at Edgerton, Soturday, at 7 cents per pound. When you want a wind mill or any pump repairing done, call on Jay Shaw. He will rig you out in good shape.

Chicago Live Stock Markets.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Somewhat heavier receipts of cattle than expected came for the opening trade this week, and prices for the plainer lots of steers declined about 10c from the range of late sales last week, while most of the smooth shipping and export grades and best beef cattle sold well up to the range of late sales last week and about as well as any time this year. Values for hogs ranged 5@10c higher than Saturday, showing a big 10c advance on the week closing sales that day. Sheep and lambs met with strong demand at 10@15c advance on prices last quoted. Opening receipts this week—16,000 cattle, 29,000 hogs and 14,000 sheep—stand against 19,697 cattle, 39,381 hogs and 23,537 sheep last Monday, and 14,393 cattle, 36,364 hogs and 12,221 sheep one year ago to-day. A wreck on the Northwestern delayed many trains on that line until too late an hour for the market, but most of the offerings in all branches that were here on time found sale.

ASTONISHING STORY.

CLAIMS TO BE THE DUKE OF HAMILTON.

Charles Gunn, Arrested in the Transvaal, Declares Himself a Nobleman Supposed to Be Dead and Buried—Duel and a Mock Funeral.

History repeats itself. Events run in cycles. The tragedy or comedy of life sobs or laughs to a responsive echo. Nature is a plagiarist from herself. She may now and then produce a startling original effect, but straightway proceeds to make it a chestnut by inartistic repetition.

Early this year the world was startled by a story that shrouded one of the greatest houses in England in awesome mystery. A duke—the fifth Duke of Portland—was said to have lived a double life, and when the time came for the duplicity to end his alter ego, "Thomas Druce," had been reported dead and a lump of lead had been buried in the tomb falsely marked with Druce's name. But Druce and the duke, so the story ran, were one and the same person. The duke, a superstitious bachelor, had contracted a liaison under the plebeian name and the plebeian character of Thomas Druce, a merchant, whose shop was in the center of London. The liaison had resulted in eventual marriage from which a legitimate heir had sprung. But the duke went insane, and was confined for many years until his real death in a private asylum. Meanwhile, his ostensible heirs had circulated the report of Druce's death and had performed the sham burial to lend artistic verisimilitude to the fraud. On the death of the duke, the present, or sixth, duke usurped the title and the property.

This is the weird story that is soon to be passed upon by the English courts.

And now from the wilds of Africa comes an identical story, involving another ducal house of even greater hereditary prestige and present power, the Hamiltons of Scotland. In this case, it is asserted, it was the present rightful heir to the dukedom who years ago disappeared from civilization, gave himself out for dead and allowed a mass of lead to be coffined and buried as his own body.

The story is so strange and fascinating that it is well to go into details. The title of the Duke of Hamilton carries with it an estate of 157,384 acres, a gross rental of £140,526, and an opulence of titular glories exceeding the baptismal names of a royal baby. Suffice it to say that he is not only the premier peer of Scotland and heir male of the house of Douglas, with the title Marquis of Douglas, but Duke of Chatelrehault in France and Duke of Brandon and Baron Dutton in the peerage of England, and as such doubly entitled to a seat in the house of lords.

The chief seats of the Duke of Hamilton in Scotland are Hamilton Place in Lanarkshire, Kinnell House in Linlithgow and Brodrick Castle in the Isle of Arran, Buteshire. In England the family seat is Easton Park, Brandon, Suffolk.

The Lanark and the Linlithgow estates have been, with short interruptions, in the possession of the Hamiltons ever since the days of King Robert the Bruce. The Suffolk estates are a modern acquisition, originally purchased by a Dutch officer, a great favorite of William III., by whom he was created Earl of Rochford. The last Earl of Rochford bequeathed these estates to a Duke of Hamilton, who was his half-brother.

This dukedom had been created by Charles I. shortly after the outbreak of the rebellion. The first duke was beheaded by the Round Heads in 1649. His son, the second duke, was mortally wounded at the battle of Worcester, and, leaving only daughters, the estates fell to his sister, Lady Anne Hamilton, who married Lord William Douglas. From that time the Dukes of Hamilton have been Douglas-Hamiltons. Since the death of the fourth duke, who was a leading statesman at the time of the Hanoverian settlement, the Hamiltons have not been distinguished, except as house builders, art collectors and patrons of the turf.

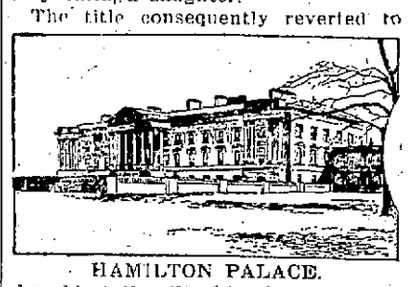

Skipping a half dozen of these uninteresting personages, we come down to the eleventh duke, who married the Princess Marie of Baden, third cousin of Napoleon III., and, in 1852, succeeded to the Hamilton titles. Out of cousinly affection the emperor confirmed him in the title of Duke of Chatelherault, a dignity with which the family had been nominally invested as far back as the time of Mary Queen of Scots.

The eleventh duke died in 1863, leaving two sons, William Alexander Louis Stephens, who became the twelfth duke, and Charles George Archibald, of whom more anon.

The twelfth duke was only eighteen years of age when his father's death called him to the succession. He had been educated at Oxford, where his only reputation was won as a pugilist. His maturer tastes ran entirely in the line of horses and yachts. He proved in every way unfit for the position of one of the greatest territorial magnates of the United Kingdom. His coming of age was celebrated in Paris by festivities which gave bitter offence in Scotland. A greater clamor was raised when, in 1879, he sold, for half a million pounds, the bulk of the magnificent art treasures which had been carefully collected by his ancestors. His relations with his tenantry were conducted on the basis that whatever a nobleman wished to do was right. The evictions at Arran scarcely sustained the traditions of a historic name, but he bred horses with great assiduity, and was for a time the owner of the yacht Thistle.

On his death, in May, 1895, the estates were left in a chaotic condition. He had married in December, 1873, Lady Mary Louise Elizabeth Montagu, eldest daughter of the seventh Duke of Manchester, by whom he had an only child, a daughter.

The title consequently reverted to the eldest Hamilton in the male line. This would have been his brother, Charles George Archibald, had that young man been living. But Charles had—ostensibly, at least—died in May, 1886, at the age of thirty.

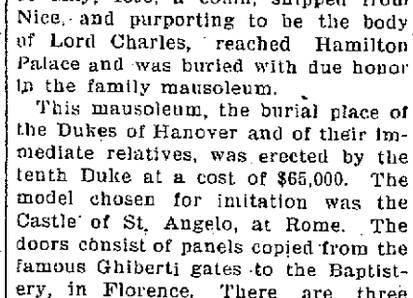

The event was announced in the London Times in a cablegram from Biarritz, dated Wednesday, May 5, 1886, which read, "Lord Charles Hamilton, brother and heir presumptive to the Duke of Hamilton, died at Nice on Sunday, after a long and painful illness, the proximate cause of death being lung disease." The first symptoms of this ailment, it went on to explain, had displayed themselves about twelve months previous at Biarritz, where his lordship had been residing for the last few years. He had married the divorced wife of Baron Paskiewitch, but, having been converted later to the Roman Catholic religion, which does not countenance marriage with a divorce, he had been engaged at the time of his death in seeking to have the union annulled.

A little later, in the same month of May, 1895, a coffin, shipped from Nice, and purporting to be the body of Lord Charles, reached Hamilton Palace and was buried with due honor in the family mausoleum.

This mausoleum, the burial place of the Dukes of Hanover and of their immediate relatives, was erected by the tenth Duke at a cost of $65,000. The model chosen for imitation was the Castle of St. Angelo, at Rome. The doors consist of panels copied from the famous Ghiberti gates to the Baptistery, in Florence. There are three stories to the building, which rises to the height of 120 feet. The interior of the chapel is rich in exquisite stonework. The floor is a mosaic of jasper, white and yellow marbles and green porphyry.

Under these circumstances the title passed to the late Duke's cousin, Alfred Douglas then a lieutenant in the royal navy, who was born March 6, 1862. He is now known as the thirteenth Duke of the title, and for two years has been in full enjoyment and possession of all that the title carries with it.

And now comes the astonishing sequel. So far back as May 20, 1897, the Herald published a special cablegram from Johannesburg, Transvaal, to the effect that "a gentleman who has been a resident of South Africa for a score of years" claimed to be Charles George Archibald, the younger brother of the twelfth Duke of Hamilton, and consequently the rightful heir to the title. "He alleges," continued the cablegram, "that he left Scotland in 1875, after killing a man in a duel, and was supposed to have died shortly afterward. He is said to have convincing proofs of his allegations, and expects to return to England and claim the title and estates."

The cablegram created a temporary flutter. But as no further developments were forthcoming the nine days' wonder was forgotten at the end of a fortnight.

Now, at last, the promised developments have arisen. A man in the Transvaal known as Charles Gunn was recently arrested for fraud. He proves to be no other than the claimant in question. When called to the witness stand to testify in his own behalf he gave his name as Charles George Archibald Trust Allows People to Freeze.

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 31.—A mass meeting of freezing Anderson people was held last night for the purpose of taking action against the new natural-gas trust which supplies this city. There is said to be an abundance of natural gas, but the trust is either holding it back or has not put on enough wells. As a result people are actually freezing. Many of the houses have not been built for coal or wood fires, and they get no gas. Action will be brought against the trust in the courts.

Says Woodford Is Wrong.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The Cologne Gazette declares that the statement made a few days ago by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, late minister of the United States to Spain, that there was a coalition of European nations against America is a figment of the imagination. The paper reaffirms that it has positive knowledge that Germany, at the outset of the trouble with Spain, resolved to act with the strictest neutrality, and that Russia decided to act similarly.

Eighth Illinois to Return.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Of the four volunteer regiments to return to the United States from Porto Rico for muster out, the Forty-seventh New York will be landed at New York city, the Sixth United States volunteers at Savannah and the Eighth Illinois (colored) infantry and the Twenty-third Kansas (colored) infantry at Newport News. Arrangements for their transportation to the United States are being made by the quartermaster-general.

Pay for the Cuban Insurgents.

Havana, Jan. 31.—The New York Tribune correspondent cables that the return of Gen. Jose Gomez and other members of the commission which went to Washington to secure pay for the insurgent troops has focused that question. The members give out that a satisfactory arrangement was reached and intimate that $3,000,000 will be advanced by the United States, to be repaid out of customs receipts.

American Cash for Germany.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The 200,000,000 marks of 3 per cent consols purchased from the German and Prussian governments last week by the Deutsche bank will be placed by the bank chiefly in Great Britain and the United States. The bank paid 91⅜ for the bonds, and will issue them to the public at 92.

Reduction of Weight of Passenger Cars.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is striving to reduce the weight of its passenger cars. The standard pattern cars weigh close upon 30 tons, and by reducing weight in every possible detail, nearly 4 tons can be taken off. This reduction represents pretty nearly the average passenger contents of a car. Much of the traction resistance of a car is due to its weight. Consequently the reduction will increase the number of cars that may be drawn by an engine. The air resistance is independent of the weight.

A YOUNG MAN'S SUCCESS.

How He Secured Happiness—Hope for Others.

Three years ago I was a wreck of manhood, without ambition, energy or hope. I was a victim of secret vice and the fearful results of the vile habit which so often robs men of manhood and health, renders life a burden, business a failure and marriage a disappointment. I was weak, tired, languid, despondent and nervous, together with other symptoms of that disease of error. I felt that my life was blighted and robbed of all that makes life worth living. My wife, whom I loved fondly, almost sacredly, and whose love was an inspiration to me to achieve the most of life's opportunities, had changed in a year, from a cheerful, hopeful, light-hearted, happy girl, became discouraged, dissatisfied and careless; disappointment and unhappiness were pictured on her countenance.

I was conscious that my crime against nature, although done in ignorance and thoughtlessness, was the cause of all my trouble, and I felt like a criminal in hiding, fearing discovery. I was in despair, and often wished the cord of life might be broken and I be released from a bondage which was worse than death.

To-day I am well and happy, restored to perfect health and vigorous manhood, relieved of all the effects of disease, and experience joys and happiness that I had never before known.

My wife has experienced as great a change as myself. She is happy and light-hearted as of yore and our baby boy, now sixteen months old, is a perfect picture of health, and when he plays about his mother's knee I think of him as a bond of love, and health and happiness restored; and my heart swells in grateful thanksgiving to the Giver of all good things that, with restored health, I can appreciate the greatest pleasures of life, the most exquisite enjoyments and sweetest embrace, such as I believe few men have experienced.

When a man has suffered for many years with a weakness that blights his life, and robs him of all that really makes life worth living, when after years of doctoring with all sorts of advertised remedies and self-styled Specialists, he finds a cure that brings back the health and energy that seemed lost forever, he naturally wants his fellow man to know about it and to lift out of bondage the thousands of young, middle-aged, single and married men who are to-day battling with a shattered nervous system as I did. It is for them that I tell this story. While suffering as above I was advised by Rev. H. P. Johnson to consult Dr. N. E. Wood, the celebrated Chicago Specialist. I did so, and he restored me to health and happiness which I would not part with for the wealth of the world. I have asked him to publish this letter for the benefit of others who should seek a cure before it is too late.

I am gratefully yours,
GEO. A. GOODWIN,
743 Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

We are situated now so that we have the finest line of Steel Ranges in the country at right prices.

The Acorn and Jewett. . .

Steel Ranges we have always sold and they have lived up to the reputation accorded them by their makers for good qualities.

A New Steel Range

That is going to lead them all we have just put into stock—the Mason & Davis M. & D. Columbia Range. It is so good that the United States government selected it from all the other makes for use on battleships. The Maine was equipped with M. & D. Ranges, and the Iowa, Oregon and a number of other war dogs use them. There are more good points about this range than any we ever saw and the price is no stronger than on other steel ranges. It's worth seeing.

Spurgeon.

1574—Ben Jonson, friend of and colaborer with Shakespeare, born; died 1637.

1752—Gouverneur Morris, statesman, born at Morrisania, N. Y.; died there 1816.

1788—Prince Charles Edward Stuart, the Pretender, died; born 1720. Prince Charlie was the son of Pretender James Francis Edward, son of James II of Scotland. His career was marked with the most romantic incidents. In 1745 a rebellion broke out to place him on the throne, but his fortunes were lost at the battle of Culloden, in April, 1747. Defeated, he fled to the continent and died in exile.

1892—Rev. Charles Hadden Spurgeon, celebrated English Baptist, died at Mentone, France; born 1834.

1895—Judge Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar, distinguished jurist, died at Concord, Mass.; born 1816.

SENATOR J. V. QUARLES

Senator Joseph V. Quarles will be an honor to his native state. Of exceptional ability, unquestioned integrity; in the prime of life; an orator of distinction; and a man of affairs and sound business judgment, he will certainly make his impress felt in the senate. The legislature has done well to elect Mr. Quarles and the other aspirants for the high honor have shown themselves to be unselfish and patriotic. At no time has Mr. Quarles' election been uncertain. A break in the deadlock has meant his election from the start. His supporters have realized this fact and have simply waited for the inevitable to happen. They have realized that the field could not form a combination against the Milwaukee man, for reasons that have been apparent. Therefore, they have rested in confidence in the belief that their candidate could not lose.

None of Mr. Quarles' supporters have been more loyal to him than the members from Rock county. Senator Whitehead and Assemblymen Wheeler, More and Parker have voted for him on every ballot. Assemblyman Wheeler was one of "Long" Jones' trusted lieutenants all through the fight, and the other gentlemen mentioned have also been equally active.

That a majority of the people favored Mr. Quarles' candidacy cannot be denied, and his election reflects public sentiment in an unusually large degree.

Illinois saloonkeepers have caused a bill to be introduced at Springfield providing for two state hospitals for the treatment of inebriates, to be maintained by a special tax on saloonkeepers. This rather unique proposition is embraced in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Ross, of Vandalia. The saloonkeepers of Vandalia after correspondence with saloonkeepers in other parts of the state, hired a lawyer to draft the bill. Both temperance people and saloon men are now asking that the measure be passed.

"Long" Jones, who managed Mr. Quarles' campaign, has "been through the mill." In 1885, while a resident of Illinois, he was John A. Logan's right hand man, and by skillful generalship, landed the general in the senate in spite of unusually spirited opposition.

Spain has accepted the invitation to take part in the Czar's universal peace conference. It is cheaper to disarm than to put the county back on a war footing.

Delaware's next senator is very likely to indulge in fireworks. The battle for the election is between Addicks, the gas man, and Du Pont, the powder maker.

The production of gold in the United States has doubled in seven years. The total in 1892 was $29,847,444, and in 1898, $66,486,202.

The war investigating committee has decided that the beef was not embalmed. Consequently it is "up to Miles" again.

As far as the newspaper correspondents at Madison are concerned, it was also something of a "padlock."

The Derby hat trust should have no difficulty in getting ahead.

MUCH ORATORY TO MARK THE WEEK

SENATE WILL DEVOTE ITSELF TO THE PEACE TREATY,

Nearly Every Member is Preparing to Emulate Demosthenes — Literary Hacks Are Living in Clover—Administration Supporters Are Confident of Carrying the Day.

Washington, Jan. 31—[Special]—Little aside from the Spanish-American treaty will be heard or talked about in the senate this week. There will be speeches galore both in favor of and against ratification, and if the subjects are not exhoustedit will not be the fault of the senators, scarcely one of whom has neglected the preparation of a speech on some phase of the issues. It is not probable that all will be delivered, but all will appear in the Congressional Record, as "leave to print" will be granted to all who have neither the opportunity or inclination to deliver them. The literary hacks around the capitol have been kept busy for weeks in looking up data for these speeches, and have written not a few of them. Not a few of the senators look to these people for a good deal of assistance. Some have not the leisure to look up authorities; others have no facility in the construction of a speech. For ten, twenty or fifty dollars they can have a speech written for them on any side of the question in which the argument is strong and the reasoning conclusive to their own minds; while the authorities for the positions assumed cannot be challenged The hacks who do the work are living in clover. They eat elaborate dinners in the senate restaurant and smoke expensive cigars. It is even hinted that they wash down their food with an occasional bottle of champagne, but of course this cannot be true as it is understood that the senate restaurant is conducted on temperance principles.

There will be sufficient variety in the speeches to suit all tastes, for the men who prepare a majority of them are versatile and avoid repetition. One of the best known of these literary men has written speeches advocating and opposing territorial expansion, and a third dodging either position. He insists that all three are unanswerable.

Another, who claims to have received the largest fee of any of his fellows—$500 for about two weeks' work from a senator with more money than oratorical ability—says his speech is a daisy and will give his patron another term in the senate sure.

The week will witness an uninterrupted flow of oratory, good, bad and indifferent. The administration senators are more confident than ever before that the treaty will be approved by a safe majority, but there is much anxiety on both sides as to the vote on Monday next. Every senator will be in his seat, and no dodging is looked for.

er nature—Frame and his company of musical and character artists. Mr. Frame, himself, was an entire host, and could have kept the audience merry for the whole evening. His songs were those of the peasantay of Scotland—jovial, mirth-provoking creations—and his acting was something marvelous. His every word provoked a smile, his every sentence a laugh, while his acting threw the audience into paroxysms of mirth.

Mr. Frame's associates were all people of superior talent, and none of the numbers on the program were permitted to pass without an encore, to which the artists cheerfully responded until the hour became so late that the entire night threatened to be consumed. Miss Annette H. Gray is a contralto of marked talent, with a voice rich, mellow and sympathetic. She gave admirable expression to everything she sang, and was especially fine in her character songs. Miss Florence Hayward is a pleasing soprano, her voice, though not of wide range, being well cultivated and under perfect control. The violin solos of Mr. Walter Haigh were as fine as any ever heard in Janesville, and evoked a frenzy of enthusiasm. He is an artist who has a brilliant future, for his execution, while technically faultless, shows besides a thorough appreciation of the motif of the composer.

The dancing of John MacKenzie and David C. Mather was artistic and thoroughly enjoyable. There was, in fact, no number on the program that did not thoroughly please the audience, many of whom were themselves accomplished musicians and capable of good judgment and capable criticism.

At the conclusion of the program the hall was cleared, and to the music of Smith's orchestra those who desired indulged in dancing. It was long past "the wee short hour ayant the twal" when the company dispersed, every one among the throng expressing unbounded satisfaction with the evening's entertainment.

Very Likely.

Counsel appointed to defend an Irishman challenged several of the jury, who, his client said, had a prejudice against him. Oi've been convicted under him several times already, and loikely he's beginning to have a prejudice against me."—Tit-Bits.

ONLY ONE TERM FOR M'KINLEY

Ex-Senator Blackburn's Account of His Interview with the President.

During the time they were in the house together Joseph C. S. Blackburn of Kentucky and William McKinley of Ohio were great friends personally, though always in radical opposition as to politics. As a consequence the Kentuckian is sure of a warm welcome whenever he calls at the white house. "The last time I was at the executive mansion," said Mr. Blackburn a few days ago, "was in response to a personal invitation from the president to call. Mr. McKinley appeared anxious to obtain my opinion of the political outlook for the future. I told him frankly that in my judgment he could not be re-elected. He seemed surprised. 'Your administration,' I said, 'has fought a brief and successful war, but your troubles have only just begun. The result of the late war issues growing out of it will, in my judgment, swamp both you and your administration. You cannot help it that I can see. You are not responsible. You are simply a victim of circumstances of fate. I do not believe that either of us or, in fact, anyone alive today will live to see an administration succeed itself in office. Public sentiment in this country changes too rapidly. What the public wants today and gets it is certain not to want tomorrow.' What did the president say? Well, he told me that he didn't agree with me, but that he would always be glad to see me at the white house whenever I felt inclined to call. I reminded Mr. McKinley that Polk had not been re-elected, although his administration had fought the Mexican war, which brought a large addition to our territory. Mr. McKinley is a gentleman and an able politician, but he cannot succeed himself. No president can or ever will succeed himself during the lifetime of the present generation."

The Force of Circumstances.

"Why does the count always put 'U. E. A.' in the address when he writes you a letter?" "You see," answered the heiress, "my father had an independent fortune left him when he was a boy. His first wife was immensely wealthy, and the widow whom he subsequently married had ever so much money left her when he died. The dear count can't get over his habit of calling it 'the United Estates of America.'"

CALEDONIAN CELEBRATION OF BURNS ANNIVERSARY.

Welcomed by President MacLean and Told of Their Favorite Poet by Victor P. Richardson — The Frame Company Gave a Program of Exceptional Merit.

The celebration of the Burns anniversary at the Armory last evening was one of the most successful in the history of the Caledonian society, all things considered. Although the weather was extremely cold, rendering futile the attempts to heat the hall to a comfortable degree of temperature, between seven and eight hundred of the best citizens of the town assembled to honor the memory of Scotland's greatest poet, Robert Burns.

Smith's orchestra discoursed a medley of Scottish airs while late comers were being seated, and then Colin C. MacLean, president of the Caledonian society, gave an address of welcome. He alluded to the affection all Scots have for their native poets—the poet who uttered the longings of the common people for freedom and for the comforts of their own firesides—a man who sang from the fullness of his heart and whose songs were therefore the heart utterances of his fellow countrymen. He welcomed those who had come to honor his memory, and then introduced Victor P. Richardson, the orator of the evening, who spoke as follows:

Mr. Richardson's Address

Song has ever been the first, the truest and the most lasting expression of the sentiments of mankind. From the time of Homer down through all the years the song-singer has ever been the surest to arouse our love, to fire our patriotism, or to soften our sorrow. For this reason no great epoch of history, no great movement of humanity has been without its singer; and the history of men can almost be read in their songs. In all the progress of the years gone by, in all the forward march of the people, the rythm of the song has accompanied the rythm of the march, and the purposes of men have ever been made more steadfast by the spirit of the song.

The Greeks were spurred to battle by the recitation of the adventures of Ulysses; the French, to the accompaniment of the Marseillaise, threw down the Bastile and proclaimed equality; while our own Puritan forefathers, those stern legions of Cromwell marched to battle sword in hand and with hymns on their lips. But while war songs have nerved the arms of soldiers and carried them as in a frenzy through all the terrors of battle, men have been led by gentler verses to those opinions and resolutions that have culminated in the great struggles of mankind. In all such struggles the real fight has not been on tented fields, or before fortressed towns but in the hearts and at the firesides of the oppressed.

The settlement at arms has been but the final fight. Through long years of oppression, through long years of suffering men have fought in their hearts that fierce fight between conservatism and duty, and even fear on the one hand and the love of liberty and of equality and of fraternity on the other. And during all thase years through all that fight they have been cheered and strengthened by the gentle songs of the field and fireside. For what man can hear the mother singing to her child, or the maiden to her lover, without feeling stirred within him, all that love of home and of country that leads men to welcome any hardship in the destruction of oppression? I believe the folk lore and sentiment embodied in these songs has done more to humanize mankind than all the instruction of the schools. And who among all our poets, who among all our song singers, has so surely touched those heartstrings that vibrate to all that is best in life? Burns! For who, like Burns, has described the joys of home and of fireside, of mother and children, of lover and sweetheart, and through it all has run a love of humanity and of nature too broad and too full and too deep to be measured by any standard or confined to any creed? This love of homely joys, this broad fraternity of Burns, is the keynote of our modern civilization. And this, I believe, is the secret of his hold on all hearts.

Burns, like all great poets, was filled with the spirit of his age. And that spirit was the spirit of fraternity, and because that spirit still prevails, because we like Burns, still dream of universal fraternity, our hearts are in touch with the heart of Burns, and his songs move and thrill us, as they will all hearts while the love of mankind continues to exist. As no great historical movement is without its poet, I consider Burns the poet of the last and perhaps the greatest movement of humanity. That movement that commenced in the hearts of the people centuries ago and bore us its fruit, the French Revolution, our own Declaration of Independence, and later, the emancipation of the slaves. That movement that has for its object the breaking down of all the old barriers of the past and the elevation of man to that higher plane where all unnatural distinctions are wiped out and each man believes and knows himself to be the equal of all other men.

Burns is the greatest poet of this last era in the history of man, the era whose watchward is fraternity. With us liberty has been achieved, equality is knowledge. But liberty and equality are cold and heartless as compared with fraternity. They have almost the cold formal meaning of legal phrases, their bounds are described; but fraternity is warm, it has depth of feeling, it is without limit, and so after liberty and equality have been achieved, fraternity can grow and broaden at long as mankind exists, and it is of this fraternity that Burns is the poet.

Burns was born and grew to manhood during the years that just preceded the last great struggle against oppresion. He was seventeen years of age when war was declared in this country against England and thirty-four years old when Louis XVI was guillotined in France and the years between these two events are more full of history than whole centuries were before. Men were aroused to stand forth and proclaim themselves free. How that great struggle must have filled all life to have penetrated to the peaceful valley of the Ayre and stirred the gentle plow-boy poet to sing of equality and fraternity. We are not apt to connect Burns' hopes and dreams with the practical problems that confront us today, a century after his death, but nevertheless the connection exists. Within a year our government, which we believe to be the hope of all who love liberty and fraternity, has apparently taken the first step of departure from the policy of its founders, and our people have determined that other nations than ours shall enjoy the fruits of self-government and that a man black or white, let him live in America or Cuba or the Philippines, "a man's a man for a' that."

We all know that the determination to free these people was not arrived at suddenly and without premeditation, but that for years past their condition of helpless bondage has weighed heavily on the hearts of our people and for years we have longed to stretch out to them the helping hand of freedom; but downed by conservatism, bound by the treaties and precedents of past generations, we have tried to smother in our hearts all spirit of fraternity. But during all this time it has been impossible to still the voice of the poet, and through all of our lives has run the murmur of his song, singing to us of the sanctity of home and all its relations, till aroused by the cries of suffering women and children, we throw off our selfishness and millions of people are freed. Again the sirit of the song has led us still another step toward the fraternity that Burns loved. And it is to this view of Burns that I wish to call your attention. Little can be said on so great a subject by myself or in the few moments alloted to me here; but in reading the poems of Burns I have been lead to believe that his mission was greater than that of a mere song-singer or writer of ballads.

Charmed by the beauty and feeling of his verse we too often lose sight of the deep feeling of the man for nature and especially for humanity. Burns died in the very June time of life before his powers had fully developed and so I think we may justly draw inferences from the work he had done as to the promise of his future. And judging from the songs he left us and particularly by a few verses selected from those songs I feel certain that had Burns lived to ripe manhood he would have fully realized his mission on earth, and would have struck more strongly and surely those deep true chords of human sympathy that vibrate only to the love of mankind. If we surrender ourselves to this view of Burns we should not lose sight of the fact that Burns was never free from those petty cares and trials incident upon earning a living for himself and family and that he never was able to give himself to the work of preparation necessary to produce any single great work but most during all the best years of his life continually write those songs and ballads for which he could find a ready sale and with which he could keep the wolf from the door. You all must know how poor he was. He died July 21, 1796, and on July 12th, but nine days before his death, and while suffering from his last illness, he wrote to a friend a most pathetic plea financial help. Could any man do justice to his powers under such circumstances as these?

Also, during most of his life, Burns lacked that intellectual companionship that is so necessary to a man of genius There were few among his friends and associates to spur him on to higher efforts. Most of his friends were satisfied with a song or ballad and little dreamed of the possibilities of the man. Burns, himself, felt that he could do greater work, and at several different times planned such work, but the immediate cares of life drove him from it.

Literary effort was not then rewarded as it is now and he who could write imperishable songs, songs that were to cheer the heart and strengthen the resolution of many a weary home sick Scotchman, was compelled to do duty as an exciseman on a salary of $350.00 per year.

I fully appreciate the criticism to which I am open in asking you to take this view of Burns, but we all love the man and we must all feel deeply that it is not the words of his poems or the rythm of his songs that moves us, but the spirit of the man himself as it shines through all of his verses and quickens the spirit of his readers and makes them dream with him of all that is to be hoped for in that happy time when indeed a man will be a man for a' that.

To ye Scotch-Americans particularly I wish to bring this idea of Burns and to you particularly I look for sympathy and for belief. For you even more than your countryman at home must feel that love of breath and freedom and that spirit of fraternity that was the moving spirit of Burns. For I believe that you did not leave your cots and farms in Scotland and journey so many miles over sea and land to this far western country with the single hope of bettering your fortunes, but that you must have felt that on this broad praries and in the great forests of this land, man could more fully realize those high ideals of which Burns dreamed when he sang:

Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that;
That man to man the world o'er,
Shall brothers be and a' that.

SUITS ARE BEGUN AGAINST GRAHAM

TWO ACTIONS NOW PENDING IN COURT.

Mrs. W. G. Palmer and Mrs. George A. Cooke Seek to Recover Money They Claim to be Due From Administrator of the Estate of the Late Alexander Graham.

Hon. Alexander Graham died in this city about the first day of May, 1895, leaving real estate worth $11,900, and personal estate of about the value of $1,000. He died testate. In his will he directed that his adopted daughter, Mrs. George A. Cooke, of Chicago, should be paid two thousand dollars within one year after his decease, and that Martha R. Graham, his daughter-in law, should be paid one thousand dollars. The rest and residue of his property, both real and personal, he gave to Abigail M. Graham, his widow, for her sole use during her natural lifetime. His widow and William R. Graham, his son, were nominated as executrix and executor, respectively, of the will. The widow died about October 5, 1897. During her lifetime a portion of the real estate was sold to J. M. Bostwick, being the property just north of the Gazette office, on North Main street, the building having been improved considerably since its purchase by Mr. Bostwick. The indebtedness against the estate has been paid.

Soon after the death of Mrs. Graham, a number of actions were begun against William R. Graham for indebtedness incurred by the widow of Alex. Graham, during her lifetime. Those suits have all been settled. About July 26, 1898, William R. Graham exchanged the Graham homestead on Milton avenue for certain real estate owned by Emmett D. McGowan. It is said that he also received in addition to the real estate of Mr. McGowan, about fifteen hundred dollars in cash and took the title of the real estate in his own name. Since that time, Mrs. William G. Palmer formerly Hemmingway, begun an action against William R. Graham, alleging that he is indebted to her in the sum of about six hundred dollars for services performed for his mother which she says he agreed to pay; and the real estate belonging to the estate of Alex. Graham, in addition to the real estate here in the name of Wm. R. Graham, was attached in that action.

After Mrs. Palmer had begun her suit, Mrs. George A. Cooke began an action against Mr. Graham for the sum of two thousand dollars and interest from May 1, 1896, alleging in her complaint that the legacy bequeathed to her by the will of Alex. Graham, had not been paid although it became due May 1, 1896. All the real estate mentioned was also attached in the action begun by her. These two actions are now pending in the circuit court for this county, and are on the bar calendar of the January term of that court.

Winans & Russell are attorneys for Mrs. Wm. G. Palmer; Sutherland & Nolan represent the interests of Mrs. George A. Cooke, while E. D. McGowan appears for Wm. R. Graham.

Testimonial to Col. Bryan.

The American miners at Dawson City have sent to Col. William Jennings Bryan, who is now in Savannah, a magnificent and interesting testimonial. It is a gold watch chain made of gold nuggets, just as they were picked up in some of the running streams of the Klondike, or uncovered where streams once flowed. They are carefully fastened together in chain form, and the charm is a large nugget, nearly the size of a $20 gold piece, with one side smoothed off for the inscription, which is as folows:

Presented
By the Miners of the
"YUKON RIVER"
To Our Great Silver Champion
COL. WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
Sept. 1, 1898.

The present to Mrs. Bryan is a miner's emblem of solid gold, and composed of a small spade crossed by a miner's pick. At the center of the crossing of the handles of the pick and spade are a gold nugget and a bucket tied there by a gold rope, while on the bowl of the spade are two small gold nuggets. Upon the bowl of the spade is this inscription: "Mrs. Wm. J. Bryan, Yukon, 1898."

FAIR COMMITTEE SECURE THE RINK

MIDWINTER EVENT WILL TAKE PLACE SOON.

Committees Are Receiving Encouragement from the Local Merchants—Large Entries Are Expected This Year, Farmers All Being Interested Excellent Prizes Will be Offered.

The Midwinter fair to be held in this city March 1, 2 and 3, will take place in the large rink building on South River street. The committee in charge, after much effort, have been able to secure this spacious building, which is an ideal one for such a purpose.

Those having the coming event in charge are working hard to make it eclipse any of the previous midwinter fairs held in Janesville. They are receiving strong support from the merchants, who fully realize that these midwinter fairs are a good thing for the town.

The midwinter fair held in Janesville each year for the last three years has been an event of unqualified succes in every instance. The prizes offered for farm, dairy and culinary products have been exceedingly generous. No charge is made for entrance fee or for admission, thus insuring a very large attendance each and every day.

A very conservative estimate shows that at least 20,000 persons have attended each year, and keen interest has been excited in almost every farm household in Southern Wisconsin.

The committee will be able to offer one of the best advertising opportunities at a very low cost. Whatever donation a merchant may make will be offered as a prize for farm products, thus bringing him prominently before the public in such a manner as to insure results that are enduring.

Brodhead Midwinter Fair.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell excursion ticketo to Brodhead and return Jan. 30 and 31 and Feb. 1 and 2, at a fare and a third. Good for return till Feb. 3. On account of the Midwinter fair.

The Perilous Venture of Lady Ackland.

CHAPTER I.

You have asked me again for my story of the Burgoyne affair. Yes, I ought to know about it, for it was indeed the most important affair of my life. Now, in that camp, I'll confess, was a girl I once had made love to, before the dissension divided us, before her brother was killed in the battle where I, too, was engaged. Kate Essex ever held this against me, as you will see if you follow me. Well, she was with Lady Harriet Ackland, the major's wife, in General Burgoyne's camp. I had been taken prisoner the day before the great battle. I have, as you know, some experience as a surgeon, which enabled me to be of small service in looking after General Burgoyne's wounded. And in all that fight I was busied, prisoner as I was, but enrolled as a British surgeon's assistant. I forgot that we were fighting them, as my friend Colonel Kenneth forgot it when a prisoner at Yorktown. I hardly noticed that General Burgoyne was preparing for a retreat.

But first the general was resolved to give General Fraser, who had died in the night of his wounds, a fitting burial. The regiments were mustered into a melancholy procession at sundown, and the sound of muffled drums mingled with the musketry and artillery along the outposts.

A friendly sergeant put me where I could see it all. The chaplain led, with head uncovered, the prayer book of the church of England in his left hand, and I saw then the girl I've mentioned, Kate Essex, supporting a lady scarcely older than herself, whom I surmised to be Lady Ackland. I was startled at sight of her in that dismal surrounding.

The scene, grim enough against the irregular outline of wooded hills, had sadder coloring from the soldiers, showing in all their appearances the hard, discouraging service of the yesterday, the officers with pale, serious, yet determined faces, many limping or bandaged.

The chaplain paused by the opening. Drums gave their muffled refrain, and all was ready for the service, never more expressively simple.

Suddenly out of the comparative stillness came the deafening roar of artillery. A ball tore the upturned earth at the chaplain's feet, casting dirt over his vestments, yet he kept on impassively, as if he were in a church. Several persons fell.

The sergeant, who was still at my side, cried: "D—n 'em! They'll not let us bury our general. D—n 'em!"

But suddenly the firing stopped, to be followed by the low booming of a gun at minute intervals, adding to the solemnity of the occasion.

"Do you see, Sergeant White, you are mistaken! General Gates has found that, after all, it's not a movement of your troops!" I said exultantly.

"I was wrong," said he. "They're men."

By the time the box had been lowered it already was dark, and in the retreat to the works I lost sight of Kate Essex and Lady Ackland. I had trembled for them in that rapid firing; for, though the girl was prejudiced against me, I felt I could wish her no hurt.

The meantime, many fires were lighted—rather more, I thought, at once than the camp required, but I was not long in seeing that these were feints to cover retreat to Saratoga. Half the army were supperless—weariness and despair lay on nearly every face, and yet I was amused to see two young officers, apparently oblivious, at cards by the firelight. The enemy's line had ceased firing, as if they still were apologetic for the unseemly shots the requiem of minute guns had followed.

The ensign who had taken me brought an order for me to report to General Burgoyne.

I found him in a spot rather apart from the preparations with Mr. Brudenell, the chaplain, who just had said the service, Miss Essex and Lady Ackland, who was speaking earnestly. As I came up with the little officer, Kate Essex faced me with that same utter lack of recognition, but General Burgoyne extended his hand.

"Mr. Sedley, I'll restore you the dispatch you brought from General Washington to General Arnold. Here are all your papers."

I must have looked my amazement, for he explained bitterly: "This is unusual, and the prisoner may become the friend. Lady Ackland is insistent on going down the river to the enemy, where her husband, Major Ackland, is wounded. Mr. Brudenell and Miss Essex are for accompanying her. It's a dangerous attempt to make. I've told her. Into whose hands she may fall is uncertain."

He paused, walking up and down.

"Being an officer of General Washington, you can bring them into the camp more safely than another. I have consented out of common humanity."

But my foe, Kate Essex, interrupted. "General Burgoyne, I'd prefer not to have this man with us."

"It's necessary!" Lady Ackland cried. "Will you let prejudice stand in the way?"

"Leave me, then!" cried the other passionately. "I prefer not to go."

"I can't, dear," Lady Ackland said. "I won't, but—I must get to my husband," she added.

"General Burgoyne," said I, stopping him, "I thank you for your good offer—much. I would wish to do any slight service I may."

The girl seemed silly.

"You did us much kindness at General Fraser's bedside last night," said the general courteously.

"Your excellency, chance has brought about some curious events," I said, bending my head.

"You can do a service," said the chaplain, "I believe, with General Burgoyne."

"If I may, I will go gladly," I said. "And I am sure that Miss Essex will grant me a privilege."

"I despise your favor, as you, sir," she cried, looking me full in the face, "being with the rebels when your family should have left you loyal!" This was woman left hysterical by the roll of the guns, I decided.

"I know. I expect nothing else. But it's no pleasure to be in your camp, nor did I make this chance," I said in a low voice to her.

"Ah, Mr. Sedley," Lady Ackland cried, "we need you. My poor Kate, you must control your nerves."

"I beg you all pardon," said Miss Essex. "I'll not stand in the way—of—of this man doing you this service tonight. I need not see him after—ever. But, in the face of this, how can you tolerate a rebel?" And she pointed to those dejected soldiers of the king.

"You may believe, Miss Essex, I will be to pains you shall not," said I, I think not without spirit.

"It's better that Mr. Sedley should go," General Burgoyne said, smiling as if the episode amused him even in his serious plight. "He has spoken tonight as the straightforward gentleman, and trouble, sir, makes us esteem each other. Of a pleasanter day for myself I might have had to hold you a prisoner for exchange."

Whispering some words to the chaplain and Lady Ackland, he hurried us down the slope to the bank, I keeping well behind, near Lady Ackland's maid, a frighted Irish girl.

Half way down Lady Ackland let the others pass.

"Mr. Sedley," she said, giving me her hand, "you understand Miss Essex's prejudice. It's her brother's memory, whom she lost with us."

"No one better than I. You must know there are loyalist Sedleys, Lady Ackland."

"And, I waited to tell you, you have acted fitly in a position that must be as trying to you. Miss Essex's nerves have given way, I think."

"Thank you, Lady Ackland, much for remembering me when distressd over your husband."

"You are helping me reach him, sir," said she gently. "I never can thank you enough."

At the foot of the cliffs were two skiffs. General Burgoyne had been unable to spare an escort. I told Brudenell I would take the maid in one while he should row the two ladies.

He agreed, helping Lady Ackland in, when Katherine Essex motioned the maid to follow into the same boat.

"I'll go with this person."

"You prefer, I know, to be with us," said Lady Ackland.

"What difference is it, Harriet? This man is no more to me than the oar. You thought I was weak. I may have been, but I want to show I am not now."

And, spurning my offer of assistance, she leaped in lightly, taking her seat.

"We have no time to talk about it," said Lady Ackland, losing her patience, while Brudenell helped the maid to a seat. "But you're absurdity itself."

"We'll not talk about it, Harriet," said the girl.

"Shall I lead or you?" Brudenell asked.

"You would better, as you know the river."

We put out with the slow dip of the oars, keeping well under the high bank, where the defeated army was sounding its retreat.

TO REORGANIZE MILITIA.

Bill Introduced at Indianapolis to Improve the National Guard.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—A bill for the reorganization of the Indiana National guard was introduced in each branch of the legislature Monday. Under it the state is to be divided into four regimental districts. One hundred thousand dollars annually is appropriated for the support of the militia, and the enlisted men are to receive pay at the rate of 75 cents a drill. A bill was also introduced providing for the payment of the Indiana volunteers in the recent war for the clothing charged against them by the state.

A new anti-lynching bill was offered in each house, and the members have assured the attorney-general, who wrote it, that it will be passed. It makes death the penalty for participants in a lynching, and authorizes impeachment proceedings against any sheriff who permits a mob to take a prisoner from him.

AMERICAN LEGATION IN PERIL.

Guard of Marines Needed at Pekin and at Tien-Tsin Consulate.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The navy department learned Monday that eighteen United States marines were guarding the United States legation in Pekin, and that twenty-seven marines were guarding the United States consulate and American missionary interests in Tien-Tsin. While the department has no definite information on the subject, it supposes that these detachments were landed from the Boston. Admiral Dewey has never notified the department that United States marines were left in Pekin, and the information that the department received came in a roundabout, unofficial way. A telegram of inquiry was sent to Admiral Dewey. The marines will not be withdrawn unless all danger of an insurrection among the Chinese has passed away.

Wants Their Taxes Increased.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 31.—Gov. Pingree is back of a bill now being drafted to compel the great upper peninsula copper companies to pay the state a tax on the market value of their stock. This bill may be introduced separately or incorporated in the Atkinson taxation measure, which is aimed chiefly at the railroads. For years the governor has railed at the Calumet and Hecla as a corporation concerning the vast sums of money made by copper mining companies and the small tax burden borne by them. It is estimated by the governor's advisers that the Calumet and Hecla should pay about ten times as much taxes as it does now.

Talk of a Joint Domination.

Madrid, Jan. 31.—In Madrid diplomatic circles it is not believed possible that a Philippine republic equal to coping with the difficult problems of administration in the islands can be established. Still less is the faith in the pacific domination of the archipelago by the United States. It is considered far more likely that the solution of the present difficulty will be found in a joint domination, to which the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Japan will be parties. If Spain, as a matter of courtesy, should be asked to participate in the rule of its former colony, the government would refuse.

Read this case:

Mr. Samuel Griffin, of 203 Locust St., journeyman carpenter, says: "I had a severe attack of la grippe some time ago, and as the result of this sickness a weakness of the kidneys set in. The secretions from those organs were greatly disordered, and annoying me much at night and I seemed to have limited control of them. After finishing the treatment my kidneys were so strengthened that I could sleep all night without being disturbed. I am better now than I have been for years, and give all credit to Doan's Kidney Pills for bringing about this result."

TO DIRECT EVICTION.

DUTIES OF MILITARY COMMISSIONERS IN HAVANA AND SAN JUAN.

They Will Decide the Details of Evacuation and See That Blanco Does Not Carry Back to Spain More Than Half of Havana.

The military commissioners who have been selected to go to Cuba and Porto Rico have a somewhat unusual and perplexing job ahead of them. By the terms of the protocol Spain agreed to give up and evacuate both islands. But this was only a very general sort of promise. It will be the task of the commissioners to look after the details.

These same details are multiplying with astonishing rapidity, for the Spaniard is a tricky customer. He has a habit of appropriating to his own use anything that is not nailed down, and his fine sense of honor prompts him to destroy what he cannot lug away. In a dozen instances this trait has been exhibited.

There is no guessing what mischief the valorous Blanco might do in Havana before he leaves if he is not watched and restrained. It is probable that he would evacuate Havana as the Russians did Moscow and leave only smoldering ashes or a hole in the ground if he thought it could be done with safety.

But Uncle Sam does not intend to put up with any sharp practice, so he sends several competent men to Havana and others to San Juan to tell the Spaniards what they may and what they may not take back to Spain. They will decide when and how the Spaniards must get out. Such questions as whether or not the Spanish soldiers may retain their arms and whether those who wish to remain in Cuba as peaceable citizens may do so or not will have to be decided by the commissioners.

The members of the Cuban commission are all well known men. They are Major General James F. Wade, Admiral Sampson and Major General M. C. Butler. It was at first supposed that General Fitz-Hugh Lee would be one of the men appointed for this work, but he declined the offer. The reason he gave was that he would rather not give up his command just now. Probably that is so, but don't you remember hearing, about the time war was declared, that General Lee said something about not returning to Havana until he could return at the head of an army? It is possible, but not likely, that General Lee has forgotten this, for if he retains his command he will be sent to Havana under just such circumstances as he foretold. All of which goes to show that General Lee has a praiseworthy regard for the truth.

General Lee has definite ideas as to the work to be done after the Spaniards have been evicted. In a recent interview he said:

"The first work which will have to be done in Cuba will be to make arrangements by which all the municipal machinery can be put in operation in all the towns and governmental machinery throughout the island for each district. There will have to be a military control, I suppose, until such a time as the people interested can organize and put into operation a government which should be stable and strong enough to impartially protect the interests of Spaniards, Americans, Cubans and peoples of all other nationalities now on the island or who may hereafter go there.

"The most difficult problem to solve is the first organization of a preliminary form of government, as later the island will be very rapidly Americanized and all such questions will take care of themselves. As to the probabilities of the Cubans' attainment of a stable government I presume that as soon as possible a proclamation will be issued setting apart a date for the holding of a general election for a chief executive of the island and for a legislative body to which all matters affecting the futures of the island will be referred. This legislative body probably will adopt a constitution and make the proper laws to put into operation the political form of government."

Much the same work will have to be done in Porto Rico as in Cuba. The commissioners who have been sent to San Juan are Major General John R. Brooke, Admiral Schley and Brigadier General William W. Gordon. General Brooke and Admiral Schley are well known, but General Gordon has been little mentioned because he has been in command of a division of volunteers which did not get a chance to go to the front.

Brigadier General Gordon is 61 years old and served with distinction in the Confederate army. He was senior colonel of Georgia militia when mustered into the volunteer service, and was recommended unanimously by the Georgia delegation for appointment as brigadier general. He is a leading citizen of Savannah, a man of wealth and high social position. As a merchant he is connected with several leading institutions in Savannah, and is president of the Savannah Cotton Exchange.

TOWN CLERK TAKES OATH.

Was All Run Down, Nerves Weak and Unstrung.

I Was Unable to Work, and Had Catarrh So I Was Nearly Deaf.

Dr. Greene's Nervura Cured Me and Made Me Feel Like a New Man.

Town Clerk, Samuel A. Fuller, Justice of the Peace, of Sand Beach, Mich., says: "I, Samuel A. Fuller, do hereby certify under my official seal, that for a long time I was all run down and nerves unstrung, so much so it was almost impossible for me to write and keep up my office business; my trouble being heart disease, catarrh in the head and throat and resulting disease of the lungs; I had a very bad cough and was nearly deaf from the effects of catarrh. I procured a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and found, before I had used one-half bottle, that it was the medicine for my case. I purchased two more bottles, and after taking them I felt like a new man, better than I have for the last five years. I would cheerfully recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura. I consider Dr. Greene's Nervura the very best medicine now in use for a genuine nerve and blood builder. I feel it my duty to write this for publication, hoping it may be the means of helping other poor sufferers."

People may well have confidence in Dr. Greene's Nervura, for it is the prescription of the famous Dr. Greene, 148 State St., Chicago, Ill., who can be consulted at any time without charge either personally or by letter.

TREATY CORRESPONDENCE.

President Submits Documents to the Senate.

COMMISSIONERS HAD POWER.

American Representatives Went to Paris Unhampered by Explicit Instructions —Vote on the Army Bill Is to Be Taken in the House Today.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The president Monday sent to the senate correspondence on file in the state department bearing upon the peace treaty, and it was read in executive session. The documents are numerous, as there were telegrams, letters and reports for almost every day the commissioners were in Paris.

Much of the matter covered the same ground as that already published, but it was presented in the form in which the proceedings were outlined from day to day in the cable correspondence between Secretary Hay, as the president's representative, on one hand, and Commissioner Day, as the representative of the American commissioners, on the other.

The principal interest among the senators attached to the president's instructions to insist upon the cession of the island of Luzon and after that in the decision to take the entire group of islands. In his dispatch concerning Luzon he said there was but one alternative—the United States must either take the island and assume sovereignty or return it to Spain, and of the two courses he preferred the former.

Spain was from the first unwilling to cede any of the Philippines, and she made especial objection to letting go of Luzon alone. The commissioners, with the exception of Senator Gray, urged that to take Luzon and leave the other islands of the archipelago in the hands of the Spaniards would be to invite innumerable complications with other nations, and especially with Europe and with Spain.

The president does not appear to have at any time given explicit instructions to consummate the bargain by taking all the Philippines, but rather, after hearing a full explanation, to have left the matter to the discretion of the commissioners.

The entire controversy was practically over the Philippines and the question of assuming responsibility for the payment of the Spanish bonds for which the Cuban revenues were pledged. The Spaniards from the first insisted upon an indemnity for the Philippines, and the correspondence shows that after the proposition to pay $20,000,000 was made, the negotiations proceeded more smoothly and were soon brought to a close.

After a brief debate the senate refused to print the correspondence.

VOTE ON ARMY BILL TODAY.

House Has the Measure Nearly Ready for Final Action.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The house put in a hard day's work on the army bill Monday, and when it adjourned thirteen of the twenty pages had been completed. The committee amendments giving the president discretionary power to reduce the size of the infantry companies and cavalry troops to sixty men each were adopted and also a series of amendments to reduce the officers of the staff.

A substitute was adopted for the section providing for promotions which was designed to equalize promotions. A fight was made to reduce the age limit for officers to be appointed to the various staff departments from fifty to thirty, but it failed. An amendment was, however, adopted to require a mental and moral as well as a physical examination for such appointees. Much of the time was occupied in short speeches on the general proposition to increase the army and annex the Philippines, and there were several lively personal controversies. The house meets today at 11, and whatever time remains before 3 o'clock after the bill is completed under the five-minute rule will be devoted to general debate. The heavy-weights on both sides will close. The final vote is to be taken at 3 o'clock.

Carter Speaks for the Treaty.

Washington, Jan. 31.—An effort on the part of Mr. Allison to obtain consideration in the senate for the Indian appropriation bill precipitated a running debate, which occupied all the time until the senate, at 2 o'clock, went into executive session on the peace treaty. Senator Carter (Mont.) urged the ratification of the treaty.

Mr. Mason (Ill.) presented a resolution asking that the secretary of war be directed to furnish for the information of the senate a statement as to the percentage of our soldiers who are sick and have been sick and the number of deaths in our army by reason of the sickness caused by the climate in the Philippines. The resolution was adopted.

Accuse Justice Chambers.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The government has received official reports from Samoa, giving advices up to Dec. 27. They say that Chief Justice Chambers actively opposed the election of Mataafa, issued manifestoes in behalf of Malietoa Tanus, and acted in other ways, violating the neutrality which his functions imposed upon him. The British mission, at whose house Justice Chambers resided for a time, also supported Malietoa. Justice Chambers, the advice says, is at odds with both Dr. Raffel and Consul Rose.

He had been sinking slowly for two days. He was unconscious at the end, and death came without pain.

Pana Wants an Investigation.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—It is announced that a petition requesting legislative investigation into the situation at Pana will be presented to the general assembly. A movement is now on foot in Christian county to induce the sheriff to ask Gov. Tanner to withdraw the troops at Pana. The governor has announced that the sheriff is in absolute control at Pana and has stated that he is willing to comply with any reasonable request that officer may make. If the sheriff will assume the responsibility of saying that he is able to keep order without the troops it is probable that the soldiers will be recalled.

Wholesale Grocers to Join.

New York, Jan. 31.—Conferences are being held in this city looking toward the formation of a combination of wholesale grocers in the western states, who do an annual business amounting to $500,000 or more. Incidentally there has been discussion among representatives of the concerns interested of the suggestion for the establishment of the rebate system in the sale of tobacco, as proposed by the tobacco manufacturers.

Butter Makers Are Alarmed.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 31.—Indications of the genuine alarm that is felt among northern Illinois producers of butter over the present demoralization of the market through the manufacture of substitutes is shown in resolutions adopted unanimously at farmers' institutes in the three counties of Winnebago, McHenry and Stephenson. Farmers and dairymen believe that unless they receive legislative help the complete ruin of their industry will ensue.

GOMEZ ASKS $60,000,000.

Refuses to Disband Cuban Army Until the Sum Is Paid.

SAYS HE HAS 40,000 TROOPS.

Former Arrangement Made by Calixto Garcia Repudiated — His Followers Urged Not to Accept Office Under Americans.

New York, Jan. 31.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington says:

Maximo Gomez, the Cuban commanding-general, has demanded nearly $60,000,000 from the United States and refuses to disband his "army" until the money is paid.

He has repudiated the arrangement made by Calixto Garcia, who came to Washington with authority from Gomez to provide for the return of the Cubans to their peaceful pursuits, and whose work was barely accomplished before his sudden death on Dec. 11.

It was then agreed the United States, in order to secure the prompt resumption of labor on the plantations of the island, with a view to promoting the speedy revival of prosperity and settled conditions, should distribute about $3,000,000 among the 30,000 said to be still under arms in the ratio of $100 per man, the officers in proportion to their rank to receive a greater amount, the ordinary enlisted men to be discharged with sums less than $100, depending on the length of service and other considerations.

For over a month the pay corps of the army has been making ready to carry out this arrangement, the national defense fund being available for the purpose.

Gomez has come out against this scheme, which was operating satisfactorily to most Cubans, and has struck for greater stakes.

It is officially known here he is endeavoring to dissuade Cubans from accepting office under the American occupation and is urging all the natives of every grade to stay with him in the field until the United States is compelled to accede to his "terms of disbandment."

Gomez alleges his army consists of 40,000 men, and he insists that most of them shall be paid for three years' service at the rates which prevail in the United States army.

He fixes the date of the Cuban declaration of independence Feb. 24, 1895, as the beginning of the period for which himself and his forces are to be remunerated, and for himself, with the rank of lieutenant-general, he will be satisfied with $11,000 annually, the American rate for that grade.

AGONCILLO'S LATEST PLEA.

Another Communication Sent to the State Department.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Senor Agoncillo presented to the state department Monday his fourth and last appeal for a recognition of the claims of the so-called Filipino republic. The documents were handed to the chief clerk and comprise a letter of transmittal and a memorial to the senate of the United States. In the letter Agoncillo asks that the memorial be forwarded by the president to the senate. Only a part of the letter has been given out by Agoncillo.

It is believed that a refusal of recognition to this appeal will be the signal for an attack by Aguinaldo on the American troops, Aguinaldo having been invested with full authority to declare war against the United States. It is understood that Agoncillo will remain but a few days in this country if he be again ignored by the state department.

The letter and memorial went to the index clerk. It will be laid before Secretary Hay today, who will undoubtedly treat it as he has treated Agoncillo's previous communications.

A. H. Garland Laid to Rest.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 31.—The remains of Augustus Hill Garland reached Little Rock Monday, escorted by a legislative committee, who met the funeral train at the state's border. The remains were met at the union station and escorted to the senate chamber, where they lay in state until 2 o'clock, when elaborate ceremonies were held. Interment was in Mount Holly cemetery.
